Thursday 14 June, 9.30am -1 pm, AJ Bell Stadium

Salford is at the start of something new. Salford is building an "inclusive economy" where businesses, communities and people all contribute to Salford's success and reap the rewards. There is no doubt that Salford has been increasingly successful in attracting inward investment and development, as a basis to economic growth and social gain. However, despite this great success, this approach, on its own, is not enough. An inclusive economy in Salford, will be one where wealth not only trickles but flows.

This event is both a celebration of what Salford is doing, but also a rallying call, to do more, that is ambitious, and action focussed.

In this, the city joins a growing range of places, in the UK and internationally, who are building local wealth - making economic and social justice a reality.

Led by Neil McInroy, CLES Chief Executive

- Hear first hand from international and national representatives leading the way
- Be inspired to build upon what the city has already achieved
- Be a part in a key moment in the development of this approach for the city
